LOCALETS

Mr. and Mrs. B. Palmer of Bow City were visitors in town Monday.

Born—On Tuesday, November 6th, to Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Dunbar, a daughter.

Mr. Billes has erected himself a little bungalow just west of the Pioneer Lumber Yard.

There was an auto raid in Vulcan Monday evening, and dimmed lights have become more fashionable.

The Lomond Consolidated schools are closed for a few days while the staff are attending the teachers' convention at Lethbridge.

R. Shields was down from Travers Sunday and Monday. He says the wheat belt in the vicinity of Travers is one of the best in Alberta.

G. C. Dennis of Calgary, representing the big flour mill company of that city, was in town Monday and Tuesday and went on to Travers Wednesday.

The Harmony club will hold a dance in I. O. O. F. hall, Lomond, on Friday evening, Nov. 16th. Klebe's orchestra of Vulcan will furnish the music. Tickets, $1.50.

Fred Buffan has gone to Saskatchewan, where he has a farm. Prior to his departure he and a number of young men were entertained at a little party by Mrs. W. A. Teskey.

Lorne Tibbetts has purchased F. C. Rockwell's barber shop and pool room. He will add another pool table. For the present F. C. Rockwell will have charge of the barber shop.

The writs for the Dominion election were issued last week. Nominations will be held Monday, November 19th, and the elections Monday, December 17. Writs are returnable February 27th, 1918, and parliament is summoned to meet the next day.

Autoists appear to have a grudge against the north end of Lomond's one and only sidewalk. Saturday evening a reckless driver struck the sidewalk on the port bow and scattered it around over the scenery. Possibly a heavy fine would have a tendency to induce more careful driving.

Truly Alberta weather works in spells. Whoever could have anticipated summer weather such as we are now enjoying when the snow and frost was with us three weeks? This will just nicely give us time to get in a winter's supply of coal before the zero weather comes into control.

W. H. Smith fell into the hands of his majesty's law when over at Vulcan Monday evening. The timely rescue by F. O. McKenna and Pete Travis relieved him of the embarrassment of punishment. W. H. will wear blinkers on his car after this. Then, to cap the climax, the local constable rounded up about twenty offenders of the "No-Glare" Act in town the next night and served them with an official warning.

The regular monthly meeting of the U. W. A. was held Thursday, Nov. 1st at the home of Mrs. A. Wogsburg. A goodly number of ladies being present. For the winter months the society intend holding their meetings the first Tuesday of the month in the evenings, the meeting for December to be held at Mrs. Den Williams' home. A full attendance is requested as the officers for the following year will be elected. After the meeting a social evening will be spent.

Is there a village bylaw taxing hawkers and peddlers selling goods in the village? If there is not such a bylaw, there can be no reasonable excuse offered for taxing local business men for a protection which they do not receive, and for local improvements which are not visible to the naked eye. About a mile of extra sidewalks are needed in Lomond. There should be a sidewalk along every residence street in the town, and box drains across the main street at Neil's butcher shop, the Chinese restaurant and Marshall & Wilson's store. Street crossings should be higher than the mud on either side to ensure a reasonable amount of comfort to pedestrians, and less unnecessary labor for those who have to shovel the mud out of their homes and business places. Now is the time to do this work, while the weather is fine. If Lomond is to be a town of importance, some greater inducements than mud, scarcity of water and high cost of living must be offered intending settlers.

Non-Partisan League.

A members' meeting of the Lomond branch of the Non-Partisan League of Canada was held in Odd-Fellows' hall Friday evening, with F. E. Harvey, organizer for the district, in the chair. Rev. Mr. Irwin delivered an interesting address on the evils of party politics. His remarks were repeatedly applauded.

F. E. Harvey spoke briefly on organization work, and urging large attendance at nominating convention on the 6th inst.

A business meeting was held and organization completed by the election of the following executive:

President—Stewart Galbraith.
Vice-President—Jos. Rodgers.
Secretary-Treasurer—William Armstrong.

Committee—Herbert West, A. K. Anderberg, Charles Lee, G. A. Sweetnam and N. Sokvitne.

After a vote of thanks to Mr. Irwin, the meeting adjourned.

The Victory Loan.

L. M. Swain has been appointed honorary chairman of the Canada Victory loan in Lomond district.

Ottawa, Nov. 8, 1917.

L. M. Swain, Lomond, Alta.

Shall be grateful if you will act as honorary chairman of Victory Loan committee for Lomond district. Mr. Wm. Toole, Calgary, chairman for Southern Alberta, will communicate with you as to plan of campaign.

W. T. WHITE,
Minister of Finance.

Every man is expected to do his duty. Canada needs money—and this money is to be expended entirely within the Dominion. Do your bit! The government pays good interest.

TRIVERS

Mrs. W. G. Muir, is in town for a week.

Elmer Paulson was a Lethbridge visitor this week.

Mr. Claude Johnson is very sick in Lethbridge hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Olmschank went to Calgary last train day.

Mr. and Mrs. Burgess returned from Minneapolis last Tuesday.

Mrs. H. G. Wallace has her sister, Mrs. Smith, visiting her at present.

Miss Hazel Greenman, who has been visiting her parents, returned to Carmangy last Tuesday.

Mr. G. E. Kaump has had some alterations made in his garage. He can now store twenty-four cars.

Mr. A. MacLean, minister of public works, and Mr. Ainsworth, good roads commissioner, were in town last Tuesday.

Mr. A. S. Buchan is building quite an addition to his store. P. D. McKee and R. Cant of Lomond are doing the work.

Mr. H. G. Wright left for Calgary on November 2nd. He was manager in Purcell's store. He will be missed very much in town, as he was very well liked.

The dance held in Paulson's hall on October 31st was a success in every way. A large crowd attended, and everyone reports a good time. There is to be another dance on the 9th inst.

LOMOND DISTRICT.

Bill Benson is rushing the concrete work for his new barn.

The Aseltine family have moved to their residence in Lomond.

Mrs. Will Benson has returned from her stay with her parents across the valley.

A few have caught la grippe and its staying power seems well nigh permanent.

Scotty Culbard will soon commence the erection of his new barn. Duncan McDougall is going to help him with the job.

George Frownfelter has bought a bunch of cows and steers from John MacKay. A few cows have been sold by George to farmers in this locality.

Many here will be glad to hear that Mrs. Stark, who went for treatment to the States a while ago, has been discharged from the hospital as being cured of her trouble and is expected home soon. She will live with her daughter, Mrs. Gordon Elliott, during the winter.

It was thought last summer that farmers would have the advantage of rural telephones by this time but still no word is available as yet. Perhaps our member for the Non-Partisan League will cause noticeable improvement in this district when his voice is heard in parliament.

The C. P. R. have at last condescended to make an attempt to destroy their luxurious crop of Russian thistles when they can do little harm. These weeds have been a source of worry and anxiety to the men owning farms bordering on the railway allowance, and their removal a few months ago would have been appreciated.

Badger Lake

Chas. Hanus has started work on his new barn.

Mr. and Mrs. Haley are in Calgary this week.

A. C. Shaw is away to Cayley for a supply of oats.

Frank Stephens went to Medicine Hat on Wednesday morning.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Holmes fell off the stairway last Saturday and sustained a fractured hip.

Mr. P. Thompson rushed the parents and child to Lomond, from whence the child was taken to Lomond for treatment.

A Fraternal Visit.

Thursday evening a number of Odd Fellows from Vulcan paid the local lodge a fraternal visit, bringing with them a well-drilled degree team to take charge of the initiation of some eighteen new candidates. This work occupied the time well past the midnight hour.

To emphasize the importance of this occasion the Lodge gave a turkey supper. The Red Cross ladies catered to the occasion most auspiciously, serving better than ninety guests.

D. H. GALBRAITH

Chosen as Non-Partisan Candidate for Bow Riding.

It is said that Lomond was the most largely represented of any local in the organized districts at the Non-Partisan League convention held in Calgary on Tuesday, when D. H. Galbraith, a brother of Stewart Galbraith of Armada, was tendered the nomination to contest the Bow River riding in the coming election. The nominee, being a practical farmer and a well-posted in administrative affairs, gives the League a candidate almost certain of election under present conditions.

Those who were present claim that all affairs were conducted free from the usual machine practices and everything went off free and above board.

The League adopted a strong platform and tender it to the farming and laboring public for endorsement.

The Press is not aware of all that were present from here, but noticed the following: A. W. Tulloch, Frank Connolly, J. Moss, W. M. Armstrong, H. West, W. J. McIntyre, A. K. Anderberg, A. R. Hanna, Horace Bennett, G. A. Sweetnam, S. Henderson, R. M. Paul and A. Lee.

Mr. Galbraith will hold a meeting in Lomond Tuesday evening, 13th inst.

The Italian and Russian military situations put a dark cloud on the great issue for the Allies and calls for greater concentration of power and a greater will to meet the seriousness of the situation.

Canada is soon to be put under stringent regulations in the matter of sugar consumption.

What of the Alien?

Just now when Canada's sons are being drafted into the army, many are anxious to learn what is to become of the alien. Are we going to allow him to be protected by the blood of true subjects, while he reaps war-profits in wages and the fat of the land? The government will need to take action immediately or this question is going to cause trouble. If these people will not naturalize and come under the laws of the country they should be interned and made to labor under conditions similar to those under which Englishmen are serving in Germany who were unfortunate enough to be in that country when the war broke out.

Local Tribunal on Duty.

Messrs. Smith, Hesketh and Griffiths are in offices in the bank building where they are sitting in tribune over the claims for exemption which have been filed in this registration district under the Military Service Act. Yesterday was their first day and six claims for exemption were under consideration, four of which were granted. The medical examining board for this district sits in Medicine Hat and the boys will have to go there for examination. It is estimated that between two and three hundred cases will come before the Lomond Board.

Vancouver Grain Route.

The doctrine that Vancouver is to be an important grain shipping port is based upon the fact that water carriage is normally cheaper than land carriage. No one supposes that the present conditions give water traffic a fair and normal chance. Water transport is now tremendously costly and has serious risks, and therefore offers less than normal advantage. It is not certain how far east in the prairie country grain can now be shipped with advantage by way of Vancouver. That is one of the problems which shippers are trying to solve. Resurrection of normal conditions will push that line farther east than it is now. The only prospective competitor with Vancouver for this export traffic is Hudson Bay. Advocates of that route deserve a reward for they have been faithful to their hopes through many disappointments. Many other disappointments await them at the best, for the greater part of the year grain delivered at the port of Vancouver will be nearer to Europe than grain piled up at Hudson Bay.—Vancouver Province.

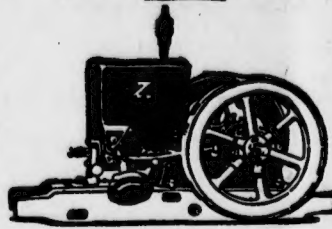

There is a great shortage of hogs in Canada. Perhaps if the farmers had enjoyed a little more of the bacon profits there would have been better inducements in the industry. Just now there is little profit in the hog unless a man has a great quantity of cheap rough feed—which "ain't $2 wheat, by heck!"

No more grains are to be allowed in the manufacture of alcohol in Canada after November 30th, except under special license for munition purposes.

the Indian forestman her.

"The sahibah, general—I found her here before your opened safe!"

"Good God!" General Crandall's eyes blazed. He leaped to the safe, knelt and peered in. "A clever job, young woman!"

Jane, completely stunned by the Indian's swift strategy, could hardly speak. She held up a hand, appealing for a hearing. General Crandall eyed her with chilling scorn, then turned to his servant.

"You have done well, Jaimhr."

"It—it isn't true!" Jane stammered. The governor took a step toward her almost as if under impulse to strike her, but he halted, and his lips curled in scorn.

"By gad, working with Woodhouse all the time, eh? And I thought you a simple young woman he had trapped—even warned you against him not six hours ago. What a fool I've been!" Jane impulsively stretched forth her arms for the mercy of a hearing, but the man went on implacably:

"I said he was making a fool of you—and all the time you were making one of me. Clever young woman. I say, that must have been a great joke for you—making a fool of the governor of Gibraltar. You make me ashamed of myself. And my servant—Jaimhr here; it is left to him to trap you while I am blind. Bah! Jaimhr, my orderly—at once!" The Indian smiled sedately and started for the double doors. Jane ran toward the general with a sharp cry:

"General, let me explain!"

"Explain!" He laughed shortly. "What can you say? You come into my house as a friend—you betray me—you break into my safe—with Woodhouse, whom I'd warned you against, directing your every move. Clever—clever! Jaimhr, do as I tell you. My orderly at once!"

CHAPTER XXI.

"Your prisoner, sir!"

JANE threw herself between the Indian and the doors.

"One moment. Before he leaves the room let me tell you he lies! Your Indian lies. It was I who found him here—before that safe!"

"A poor story," the general sniffed.

"I expected better of you—after this."

"The truth, General Crandall. I couldn't sleep. I came out here to the balcony to try to make out if the Saxonia was in the bay. He came into the room while I was behind these curtains, locked the doors and opened the safe."

"It won't go," the general cut in curtly.

"It's the truth. It's got to go!" she cried.

Jaimhr, at a second nod from his master, was approaching the double doors. Jane, leaping in front of them, pushed the Indian back.

"General Crandall, for your own sake don't let this Indian leave the room. You may regret it—all the rest of your life. He still has a paper—a little paper—he took from that safe. I saw him stick it in his sash."

"Nonsense!"

"Search him!" The girl's voice crackled in hysteria. Her face was dead white, with hectic burning spots in each cheek. "I'm not pleading for myself now—for you. Search him be-

Then, those dashy, hustling, young bucks must have their clothes full of vim and go. A Chosen People

Do you ever stop to realize that you are the chosen people when it comes down to the lumber business? It is a fact. If you question our statements, go to Lethbridge, Retlaw, Taber, Carmangy and other Southern Alberta towns' and get comparative prices in Building Materials.

Do You Know the Reason Why?

It is because of the combined effort of the farmers of this community to conduct their own business affairs with what has to do with the permanent development of the community—the building of comfortable homes. There is no legitimate reason why Big Business should favor Lomond with reduced prices. It is not done willingly, and the same applied to the grain trade would be a contravention of the Dominion Statutes.

fore he leaves this room."

Jaimihr put strong hands on her arms to force her away from the door. His black eyes were laughing down into hers.

"Let me ask him a question first, General Crandall, before he leaves this room."

The governor's face reflected momentary surprise at this change of tack. "Quickly then," he gruffly conceded. Jaimihr Khan stepped back a pace, his eyes meeting the girl's coldly.

"How did you come into the room—when you found me here?" she challenged. The Indian pointed to the double doors over her shoulder. She reached behind her, grasped the knob and shook it. "Locked!" she announced.

"Why not?" Jaimihr asked. "I locked them after me."

"And the general's door was locked?"

"Yes, yes!" Crandall broke in impatiently. "What's this got to do with?"

"Did you lock the general's door?" she questioned the Indian.

"No, sahibah; you did."

"And I suppose I locked the door to Lady Crandall's room and my door?"

"If they, too, are locked—yes, sahibah."

"Then why?"—Jane's voice quavered almost to a shriek—"why had I failed to lock the double doors—the doors through which you came?"

"He lies! Your Indian lies!"

The Indian caught his breath and darted a look at the general. The latter, eying him keenly, stepped to his desk and pressed a button.

"Very good. Remain here, Jaimihr," he said. Then to Jane: "I will have him searched as you wish. Then both of you go to the cells until I sift this thing to the bottom."

"General! You wouldn't dare!" She stood aghast.

"Wouldn't I, though? We'll see whether!"

A sharp click sent his head jerking around to the right. Jaimihr Khan, at the door to the general's room, was just slipping the key into his girdle after having turned the lock. His thin face was crinkled like old sheepskin.

"What the devil are you doing?" Crandall exploded.

"If the general sahib is waiting for that bell to be answered he need not wait longer. It will not be answered." Jaimihr Khan purred.

"What's this? What's this?"

"The wires are cut."

"Cut! Who did that?" The general started for the yellow man. Jaimihr Khan whipped a blue barreled revolver out of his broad sash and leveled it at his master.

"Back, General Sahib! I cut them. The sahibah's story is true. It was she who came in and found me at the safe."

"My God! You, Jaimihr—you a spy!" The general collapsed weakly into a chair by the desk.

"Some might call me that, my general." Jaimihr's weapon was slowly swinging to cover both the seated man and the girl by the doors. "No need to search that drawer, General Sahib. Your pistol is pointing at you this minute."

"You'll pay for this!" Crandall gasped.

"That may be. One thing I ask you to remember. If one of you makes a move I will kill you both. You are a gallant man, my general. Is it not so? Then remember!"

Crandall started from his chair, but the uselessness of his bare hands against the snub nosed thing of blue metal covering him struck home. He sank back, with a groan. Keeping them both carefully covered, Jaimihr moved to the desk telephone at the general's elbow. He took from his sash a small piece of paper—the one he had saved from the packet of papers taken from the safe—laid it on the edge of the desk, and with his left hand he picked up the telephone. An instant of tense silence, broken by the wheezing of the general's breath, then:

"Nine-two-six, if you please. Yes, yes. Who is this? Ah, yes. It is I, Jaimihr Khan. Is all well with you? Good! And Bishop? Slain coming down the Rock? Good also!"

Crandall groaned. The Indian continued his conversation unperturbed.

"Veree good! Listen closely! I cannot come, as I have promised. There is work for me here. But all will be well. Take down what I shall tell you." He read from the slip of paper on the desk: "Seven turns to the right, four to the left—press! Two more to the left—press! One to the right. You have that? Allah speed you! Go quickly!"

"Room D!" Crandall had leaped from his chair.

"Correct, my general—Room D." Jaimihr smiled as he stepped away from the telephone, his back against the double doors. The sweat stood white on Crandall's brow; his mouth worked in jerky spasms.

"What—what have you done?" he gasped.

"I see the general knows too well," came the Indian's silken response. "I have given the combination of the inner door of Room D in the signal tower to a—friend. He is on his way to the tower. He will be admitted, one of the few men on the Rock who could be admitted at this hour, my general. One pull of the switches in Room D—and where will England's great fleet

"You yellow devil!" Crandall started to rush the white figure by the doors, but his flesh quailed as the round cold muzzle met it. He staggered back.

"We are going to wait, my general, and you, American sahib, who have pushed your way into this affair. We are going to wait—and listen—listen."

The general writhed in agony. Jane, fallen into a chair by the far edge of the desk, had her head buried in her arms and was sobbing.

"And we are going to think, my general," the Indian's voice purred on. "While we wait we shall think. Who will General Crandall be after tonight—the English sahib who ruled the Rock the night the English fleet was blown to hell from inside the fortress? How many widows will curse when they hear his name? What?"

"Jaimihr Khan, what have I ever done to you?" The governor's voice sounded hardly human. His face was blotched and purple.

"Not what you have done, my general—what the English army has done. An old score, general—thirty years old. My father, he was a prince in India until the English army took away his throne to give it to a lying brother. The army—the English army—murdered my father when he tried to get it back—called it mutiny. Ah, yes, an old score—but by the breath of Allah, tonight shall see it paid!"

The man's eyes were glittering points of white hot steel. All of his thin white teeth showed like a hound's. "You dog!" The general feebly wagged his head at the Indian.

"Your dog, my general. Five years your dog when I might have been a prince. My friend goes up the Rock—step—step—step. Closer—closer to the tower, my general. And Major Bishop—where is he? Ah, a knife is swift and makes no noise!"

"What a fool I've been!" Crandall rocked in his chair and passed a trembling hand before his eyes. Sudden rage turned his bloodshot eyes to where the girl was stretched, sobbing, across the desk. "Your man—the man you protected—it is he who goes to the signal tower, girl!"

"No—no; it can't be!" she whispered between the rackings of her throat.

"It is! Only a member of the signal service could gain admittance into the tower tonight. Besides, who was it went with Bishop down the Rock after the dinner tonight? And I—I sent Bishop with him—sent him to his death. He was tricking you all the time. I told you he was. I warned you he was playing with you—using you for his own rotten ends—using you to help kill 40,000 men!"

A knock sounded at the double doors behind Jaimihr. He stopped short, startled. All listened. Again came the Sir: I have the honor to notify you that all men of Class 1 will be examined now by the Medical Boards whether they have registered for service or claimed for exemption or not. Medical Boards will handle all the men they can at once. Please notify all concerned.

Calgary, 2nd November, 1917.

War Is Hell. Poets Are Heller.

The following came to the Press yesterday by hand. The rifle was at the hotel. That is the reason there was no coroner's inquest today:

While his majesty's messenger lay sleeping in bed,

The "whiskey special" was puffing ahead.

But the mail wasn't on board.

A kindly neighbor came into the play, And a little old Ford sped on the way.

A successful pursuit, eh! Minus the word.

All dogs must be tagged on or before the 17th inst or they will be destroyed. By order of Lomond Council. See the town Constable.
